We are honored to have Murray Bannerman attend our event this year. Tony Esposito's backup for the early portion of his career, Murray Bannerman finally got a chance to shine in the first round of the 1982 playoffs. He won his first two games, on the road no less, and powered his Chicago team to a series victory over the Minnesota North Stars. He became the number one goalie in Chicago the next season, with Esposito acting as his backup, and eventually tended goal twice in the NHL all-star game for his yeoman work in the Hawk net, and led the Hawks to the playoffs for 5 straight seasons.

Murray Bannerman's attendance is subject to change without notice.
